Trevor Houser

Partner, Rhodium Group

Trevor Houser is a partner with the Rhodium Group (RHG) and leads the firm's energy and natural resources practice. RHG combines policy experience, quantitative economic tools and on-the-ground research to analyze disruptive global trends. Trevor's work supports the investment management, strategic planning and policy analysis needs of RHG clients in the financial, corporate, philanthropic and government sectors. He also co-directs the Climate Impact Lab, a collaboration of leading research institutions combining climate, economic and data science to quantify the risks climate change presents.

During 2009, Trevor left RHG temporarily to serve as a senior advisor at the US State Department where he worked on a range of international energy, natural resource and environmental policy issues. He serves on the finance committee of the Colin Powell School for Civic and Global Leadership at the City College of New York, his alma mater. He is a member of the Council on Foreign Relations and the National Committee on US-China Relations and serves on the Advisory Board of Center for US-China Relations at the Asia Society.

Trevor is author most recently of Economic Risks of Climate Change: An American Prospectus (2015), Navigating the US Oil Export Debate (2015), American Climate Prospectus (2014), Fueling Up: The Economic and Environmental Implications of America's Oil & Gas Boom (2014), America's Energy Security Options (2011), A Role for the G20 in Addressing Climate Change? (2010), Assessing the American Power Act (2010), The Economics of Energy Efficiency in Buildings (2009), Leveling the Carbon Playing Field: International Competition and US Climate Policy Design (2008), The Roots of Chinese Oil Investment Abroad (2008) and China Energy: A Guide for the Perplexed (2007).

Trevor speaks regularly on international energy market and policy trends to private sector, public policy and academic audiences, including at the G30, the Peterson Institute for International Economic, the Aspen Institute, the Brookings Institution, the Council on Foreign Relations, the Center for Strategic and International Studies, the Center on Global Energy Policy, Resources for the Future, the Asia Society, the World Affairs Council, and Chatham House. He has presented to the Board of Directors or management committees of a number of Fortune 500 companies, guest lectured at a range of universities, including Harvard, Stanford, Columbia, Princeton, NYU, and UT Austin, and testified before the House Energy and Commerce Committee, the House Select Committee on Energy Independence and Global Warming, the US Helsinki Commission and the US-China Economic and Security Review Commission.
